* For illustrative purposes only. The MSCI ACWI NR is being shown for illustrative purposes only to illustrate how global equities have performed in the current market cycle. While MSCI ACWI NR was not considered a relevant illustrative index prior to 2011 because the Fund was not classified as a global mandate until this point in time, we show it here to illustrate how global equities have performed in the current market cycle. If the Fund had been a global mandate prior to 2011, the results shown for the Fund may have been materially different.

Standard deviation was calculated using full month of data starting October 1, 2007, and is a measure of the dispersion of a set of data from its mean. Drawdown is the peak-to-trough decline of a portfolio during a specified period, before a new peak is attained. There have been six S&P 500 drawdowns of 15% or greater during the most recently completed market cycle. See page 3 for details of those time periods and returns.

Comparison to the S&P 500 and MSCI ACWI NR is for illustrative purposes only. The Fund does not include outperformance of any index or benchmark in its investment objectives. An investor cannot invest directly in an index. Past performance is no guarantee, nor is it indicative, of future results. Please refer to page 3 and the back of this presentation for Important Disclosures, including definitions of Key Terms.

Downside capture – Historically less risk over the long term

- We believe our flexible approach may deliver an equity-like return with less risk over the long term.
- We seek to preserve capital during large drawdowns.

- The Fund's downside capture in early 2020 is partly explained by increased net risk exposure. We increased the Fund's net risk exposure by approximately 1000 bps during the drawdown because of increased volatility in the Fund's holdings and global equity markets. It is also explained by the Fund's exposure to the financials sector and more cyclical businesses.

As of December 31, 2022. Source: Morningstar Direct, FPA. Fund returns are shown net of all fees and expenses and include reinvestment of distributions. The Fund's net risk exposure increased from 66.9% to 70.8% during the 2020 drawdown. Long term will generally include bear markets (20%+ declines) and other large corrections. Time periods referenced above reflect S&P 500 drawdowns greater than 15% and are calculated from that index's peak and trough dates, (i.e., 10/10/2007-3/9/2009, 4/23/2010-7/2/2010, 4/29/2011-10/3/2011, 9/20/2018-12/24/2018, 2/19/2020-3/23/2020, and 1/4/2022-12/31/2022). The Fund added exposure to large capitalization stocks beginning around 2007 and added exposure to developed non-U.S. and emerging market stocks beginning around 2009. Comparison to any index is for illustrative purposes only. The Fund does not include outperformance of any index in its investment objectives.

* The MSCI ACWI NR was not considered a relevant comparative index prior to 2011 because the Fund was not classified as having global mandate until this point in time. Performance and downside capture is being shown for these periods for illustrative purposes only to illustrate how global equities have performed during these.

Downside capture ratio is used to evaluate how well an investment manager performed relative to an index during periods when that index has fallen. The ratio is calculated by dividing the manager's returns by the returns of the index during the down market and multiplying that factor by 100. Net Risk Exposure: Percentage of portfolio exposed to Risk Assets. Risk asset generally refers to assets that may have a significant degree of price volatility and excludes cash and cash equivalents. Please refer to page 3 for net performance since inception and the end of the presentation for Important Disclosures, including definitions of Key Terms. Investments, including investments in mutual funds, carry risks and investors may lose principal value. Capital markets are volatile and can decline significantly in response to adverse issuer, political, regulatory, market, or economic developments. The Fund may purchase foreign securities, including American Depository Receipts (ADRs) and other depository receipts, which are subject to interest rate, currency exchange rate, economic and political risks; this may be enhanced when investing in emerging markets. Securities of smaller, less well-known companies involve greater risks and they can fluctuate in price more than larger company stocks. Short-selling involves increased risks and transaction costs. You risk paying more for a security than you received from its sale.

The return of principal in a bond investment is not guaranteed. Bonds have issuer, interest rate, inflation and credit risks. Lower rated bonds, callable bonds and other types of debt obligations involve greater risks. Mortgage securities and asset backed securities are subject to prepayment risk and the risk of default on the underlying mortgages or other assets; derivatives may increase volatility. Interest rate risk is when interest rates go up, the value of fixed income securities, such as bonds, typically go down and investors may lose principal value. Credit risk is the risk of loss of principle due to the issuer's failure to repay a loan. Generally, the lower the quality rating of a security, the greater the risk that the issuer will fail to pay interest fully and return principal in a timely manner. If an issuer defaults the security may lose some or all its value.

Value style investing presents the risk that the holdings or securities may never reach their full market value because the market fails to recognize what the portfolio management team considers the true business value or because the portfolio management team has misjudged those values. In addition, value style investing may fall out of favor and underperform growth or other styles of investing during given periods.

While transactions in derivatives may reduce certain risks, they entail certain other risks. Derivatives may magnify the Fund's gains or losses, causing it to make or lose substantially more than it invested. Derivatives have a risk of default by the counterparty to a contract. When used for hedging purposes, increases in the value of the securities the Fund holds or intends to acquire should offset any losses incurred with a derivative.

Investments in private securities and limited partnerships present risks. These investments are not registered under the federal securities laws, and are generally eligible for sale only to certain eligible investors. They may be illiquid, and thus more difficult to sell, because there may be relatively few potential purchasers for such investments, and the sale of such investments may also be restricted under securities laws.

Please refer to the Fund's Prospectus for a complete overview of the primary risks associated with the Fund.

Investing in Special Purpose Acquisition Companies ("SPACs") involves risks. Because SPACs and similar entities have no operating history or ongoing business other than seeking acquisitions, the value of their securities is particularly dependent on the ability of the entity's management to identify and complete a profitable acquisition. SPACs are not required to provide the depth of disclosures or undergo the rigorous due diligence of a traditional initial public offering (IPO). Investors in SPACs may become exposed to speculative investments, foreign or domestic, in higher risk sectors/industries. SPAC investors generally pay certain fees and give the sponsor certain incentives (e.g., discounted ownership stakes) not found in traditional IPOs. Due to this, an investment in a SPAC may include potential conflicts and the potential for misalignment of incentives in the structure of the SPAC. For more information relating to the risks of investing in SPACs please refer to the Fund's Prospectus.
