Past performance is no guarantee of future results and current performance may be higher or lower than the performance shown. This data represents past performance and investors should understand that investment returns and principal values fluctuate, so that when you redeem your investment it may be worth more or less than its original cost. The FPA Queens Road Value Fund ("Fund") commenced operations on June 13, 2002. Periods greater than one year are annualized. Fund performance is shown net of all fees and expenses and includes reinvestment of all distributions. Fund performance does not reflect the deduction of taxes that a shareholder would pay on Fund distributions or the redemption of Fund shares, which would lower these figures. An investor cannot invest directly in an index.

* Prior to November 1, 2020, the performance shown reflects the historical performance of the Fund when Bragg Financial Advisors, Inc. ("BFA") served as investment adviser of the Fund.

From inception of the Fund to December 31, 2004, BFA and its affiliates voluntarily absorbed certain expenses of the Fund and voluntarily waived its management fee. Had BFA not done this, returns would have been lower during that period. Effective January 1, 2005 through October 31, 2020, BFA had a unitized fee structure that limited operating expenses to 0.95%.

The Fund's Total Annual Operating Expenses (as of the most recent prospectus) before reimbursement is 1.61%. The adviser has contractually agreed to reimburse the Fund for operating expenses in excess of 0.65% of average net assets of the Fund, excluding interest, taxes, brokerage fees and commissions payable by the Fund in connection with the purchase or sale of portfolio securities, fees and expenses of other funds in which the Fund invests, and extraordinary expenses, including litigation expenses not incurred in the Fund's ordinary course of business, until September 30, 2025. These expense reimbursements are subject to possible recoupment by the adviser from the Fund in future years (within the three years from the date when the amount is waived or reimbursed) if such recoupment can be achieved within the lesser of the foregoing expense limits or the then-current expense limits. Similarly, the adviser is permitted to seek reimbursement from the Fund, subject to certain limitations, of fees waived or payments made by adviser to the Predecessor Fund (defined below) prior to the Predecessor Fund's reorganization on July 28, 2023, for a period ending three years after the date of the waiver or payment. This agreement may be terminated only by the Fund's Board of Trustees (the "Board"), upon written notice to the adviser.

Please see important disclosures at the end of the commentary.

Dear Fellow Shareholders,

FPA Queens Road Value Fund (“Fund”) returned 8.12% for the second quarter of 2025. This compares to the S&P 500 Value Index (“Index”) return of 3.00% for the same period. For the first half of 2025, the Fund returned 5.66% while the Index returned 3.28%.

Following April’s tariff tantrum, the markets have fully recovered and are making new highs. Stocks are expensive, the world is uncertain, and we don’t have much to add to the continuous commentary that examines the U.S. stock market with disbelief. We are bottom-up stock pickers and try to inhibit our instinct to judge macro conditions or the market as a whole.

But our focus on the particular and microeconomics helps us keep an eye out for places where the market isn’t functioning so well. As Richard Bernstein points out, “Bubbles often end when financial conditions tighten, economic growth slows, and liquidity flows from speculation to necessities. Instead of day-trading, households are forced to use their cash flow to pay their mortgages, buy groceries, and buy gasoline for their cars.”¹

And we are curious that the largest illiquid markets don’t seem to be functioning so well. In housing, the higher cost of ownership (mortgage, maintenance and insurance costs) has caused a precipitous drop in existing home sales to levels roughly commensurate with 2008’s financial / housing crisis.² Similarly, we try to stay attuned to the cracks in private equity and credit where distributions have halved as sponsors are having trouble exiting or refinancing at attractive prices.³

In July, the Wall Street Journal published a very informative article that shone a spotlight on the high-end art market, an asset class that is generally off of our radar.⁴ Sales of paintings that cost $10m or more are down 44% from 2024 and are running roughly in line with the pandemic year of 2020. From the article, we learned about the prevalence of financing for high end collectors – art backed loans that used to be available at 3% now cost close to 8%. Speculators are exiting and, according to UBS, the ultrarich are only allocating 15% of their wealth to art compared to 24% in 2022. A fall in transaction volumes often precedes a drop in prices and we will be paying attention to find out if that is the case here. We don’t know of a good art index, but the WSJ article highlights a high-profile auction for a Giacometti that, priced at $70m, failed to receive a single bid. We will be watching.

Trailing Twelve Months (TTM) Top and Bottom Contributors (%)⁵

Top 5	Performance Contribution	Percent of Portfolio	Bottom 5	Performance Contribution	Percent of Portfolio
TTM
Oracle	3.44	6.5	Elevance Health	-1.34	3.9
Trane Technologies	2.48	7.6	Merck	-1.20	2.7
American Express	2.09	6.0	Centene	-0.71	3.8
JP Morgan Chase	1.73	4.2	Danaher	-0.64	2.9
Ameriprise Financial	1.40	5.9	Intel	-0.48	1.2
	11.14	30.2		-4.37	14.5

Our top performers on a twelve-month basis include Oracle, which is benefitting from continued spending on cloud and databases, and Trane Technologies, an HVAC manufacturer, which is continuing to execute well and grow earnings. Three well run financials – American Express, JPMorgan Chase and Ameriprise, have also performed well.

Our bottom five performers include two managed care providers, Elevance and Centene, and Merck, a pharmaceutical manufacturer. Danaher makes instruments, consumables and diagnostics for the biotech and healthcare industries and has been suffering from a slowdown in those markets. And Intel continues to struggle with a combination of falling behind the cutting edge of technology and a high debt load.

At its most basic, our process compares a company's current price to what we expect the business to look like three to five years out. Our four pillars – balance sheet strength, valuation, management, and industry analysis – provide guidance and guardrails. Taking a long-term view has served us well in the past and we are confident that our disciplined and patient approach will continue to be rewarded over the long term.

In our experience, when there is exuberance in the markets, it is usually overdone. But when markets get volatile and the pundits predict doom and gloom, it is usually overdone as well. We acknowledge the heightened uncertainty as well as the headwinds the economy faces. But given the current valuations and long-term fundamentals of the Fund's holdings, we feel positive about the portfolio and remain significant co-investors with you.

Respectfully,
 Steve Scruggs, CFA

⁵ Reflects the top contributors and top detractors to the Fund's performance based on contribution to return for the trailing twelve months (TTM). Contribution is presented gross of investment management fees, transactions costs, and Fund operating expenses, which if included, would reduce the returns presented. The information provided does not reflect all positions purchased, sold or recommended during the TTM. A copy of the methodology used and a list of every holding's contribution to the overall Fund's performance during the TTM is available by contacting crm@fpa.com. It should not be assumed that recommendations made in the future will be profitable or will equal the performance of the securities listed. Totals may not sum due to rounding. 'Percent of Portfolio' reflects the average weight over the period.

Investments carry risks and investors may lose principal value. Capital markets are volatile and can decline significantly in response to adverse issuer, political, regulatory, market, or economic developments. Small and mid-cap stocks involve greater risks and they can fluctuate in price more than larger company stocks. You risk paying more for a security than you received from its sale. Groups of stocks, such as value and growth, go in and out of favor which may cause certain funds to underperform other equity funds. The value of an individual security can be more volatile than the market as a whole and can perform differently than the value of the market as a whole.

The prices of securities held by the Fund may decline in response to certain events taking place around the world, including those directly involving the companies whose securities are owned by the Fund. Securities in the Fund's portfolio may underperform due to inflation (or expectations for inflation), interest rates, global demand for particular products or resources, natural disasters, pandemics, epidemics, terrorism, regulatory events and governmental or quasi-governmental actions. There is a risk that you may lose money by investing in the Fund.

Value style investing presents the risk that the holdings or securities may never reach their full market value because the market fails to recognize what the portfolio management team considers the true business value or because the portfolio management team has misjudged those values. In addition, value style investing may fall out of favor and underperform growth or other styles of investing during given periods.

Index Definitions

The Fund will typically be less diversified than the indices noted herein and may hold non-index securities or securities that are not comparable to those contained in an index. Indices will hold positions that are not within the Fund's investment strategy. Indices are unmanaged and do not reflect any commissions, transaction costs, or fees and expenses which would be incurred by an investor purchasing the underlying securities and which would reduce the performance in an actual account. You cannot invest directly in an index.

Standard & Poor's 500 Stock Index (S&P 500) is a capitalization-weighted index which covers industrial, utility, transportation and financial service companies, and represents approximately 75% of the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE) capitalization and 30% of NYSE issues. The S&P 500 is considered a measure of large capitalization stock performance.

The S&P 500 Value Index is a subset of the S&P 500 index. Companies within the index are ranked based on growth and value factors including three-year change in earnings price/share, three-year sales/share growth rate, momentum, book value/price ratio, earnings/price ratio, sales/price ratio. The companies at the bottom of this list, that have a higher Value Rank, comprising 33% of the total index market capitalization are designated as the Value basket.
